With Lerato Kotelo, STEINERT'S Global Application Manager for Mining

'THE CLEAN ENERGY TRANSITION'

The mining industry is having to contend with more stringent environmental demands and ever more scarce resources. As a result of increasing energy and raw material prices, sensor-based sorting is gaining in importance as a substitute for, or in combination with, other processes. This technology enables valuable commodities in raw material to be cost-effectively enriched, taking the strain off downstream process stages.

This October, Lerato Kotelo, Global Application Manager for Mining at STEINERT, will explain the solutions in two livestreams.
